

BANGARRA DANCE THEATRE

TEACHERS' PROFESSIONAL LEARNING

WINHANGA-RRA

HEAR • THINK • LISTEN

We welcome the opportunity to share time and space with educators exploring Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures – the oldest living cultures on this planet. Systems of knowledge, stories and songlines developed over millennia inspire our artistic responses and strengthen our connectedness to Country.

Winhanga-rra is a professional learning program that explores processes and practices for engagement with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander histories and cultures in an education context. Focusing on cultural engagement and storytelling through contemporary dance theatre, the workshop is open to all education professionals and includes talks, open forum discussion, film presentations and practical tasks.

This program is a valuable learning opportunity for teachers of all subject areas and year groups. No dance experience is required.

“There is such a need for what you are doing – first and foremost it is central to making schools safer and happier places for First Australian students. It is also essential to reforming conversations around national identity and to effect real change, they have to begin in the classroom.”

WINHANGA-RRA PARTICIPANT, 2019

The Indigenous experience – past, present, and future – is multidimensional and timeless. The ancient manifests in the contemporary, and the future is paved through the resilience of our cultures.

Our process for framing and facilitating these workshops is based on reciprocity and respect; listening, learning and responding in a spirit of open exchange is central to all of Bangarra's work.

We are privileged to engage with those involved in educating the next generation, and sincerely hope our collaborative work will be of mutual and lasting benefit.

As teaching artists, we are learning as well. Every workshop experience is different, and is an opportunity for us to discover new ways to adapt our own teaching tools, and navigate the challenges and triumphs we experience.

“The conversations and connections that everybody so generously shared have been invaluable.”
